 7:00pm

 Sandhu Conference Center
Rooms D and D1

Photographer Catherine Opie will discuss her work from the past six years, starting with her critique of the utopian dream through the lens of an artist and arsonist. She will then explore her journey through the swamps of the South, paired with stop-motion animated political collages, and her road trip during COVID isolation in 2020, where she examined the country's response to the climate of racism and politics.
