Gender Matters: Comparative Approaches

Pregnancy, (Dis)ability, and the Movable Self in Premodern
Literature with Professor Alani Hicks-Bartlett

Monday, October 14, 2024

4:00pm

Argyros Forum – Room 209C

Assessing late Medieval and Early Modern literature through a comparative lens drawing from English, Italian, French, and Spanish literary traditions, this talk focuses on the representation of gender, pregnancy, and the serious engagement with (dis)ability that readers can find in the works of “seminal” premodern authors striving to assert their authorial voices.
