

WITH Alexis Bustos

Alexis Bustos is an Interaction/UX Designer from the Bay Area creating digital products and immersive experiences. She is passionate about making sense of big problems through research and staying knowledgeable about industry trends by engaging with the design community. She is currently working at Star, a product design consultancy, and works with mainly automotive clients. She looks forward to collaborating with both creative and development team members to deliver high-quality digital work and the best possible user experience. You can also find her hosting Adobe Live streams on Behance and mentoring career shifting designers. In her spare time she enjoys woodworking and plays music from her home in Oakland, CA.
